Hello everyone. My name is Gian, and I'm from Brazil. My question right now is, what is a job I would love to have?

So my current job/career right now is I work as a music producer and film composer. So I make music, a lot of music also help other artists to make their music. And I'm also a CEO of a record label. So that's what I do right now and everything in between managing the record label and contracts and partners and selling music and all of that.

So the job that I would love to have is almost like completely different thing, but for some reason I've always told myself and my family that if I ever give up on the music business, I am going to become a beekeeper. I would love to help bees. I am in love with honey. I just really love honey for some reason. My grandpa used to be in love with honey as well. I guess it comes from him, but I think bees are just wonderful creatures. And I mean, not only talking about how important they are for our ecosystem but also, I just think they are amazing.

So beekeeper will be the job that I would love to have. All right, guys, hope to see you soon. Bye-bye.
