

Hi, I'm Elise, and I'm going to _____ (talk / talking) about the weather and _____ (festival / festivities) in Peru.

In January, it's summer and _____ (lot / lots) of people go to the beach at the _____ (cost / coast). Children are on summer holiday. In February, they _____ (celebrate / celebration) carnival by throwing lots of water _____ (balloon / balloons) at each other. In March, children go _____ (before / back) to school. In April, they celebrate Easter with some _____ (rarely / really) delicious special breads. In May, lots of _____ (tourist / tourists) start coming to Peru, and it's _____ (quiet / quite) cold because it's _____ (almost / mostly) winter.

In June, there are a lot of _____ (religion / religious) festivities. One of the _____ (most / almost) important ones is called Inti Raymi, and this _____ (happening / happens) in Cusco. In July, they celebrate Independence Day at the _____ (and / end) of the month. In August, children have two weeks of holiday _____ (about / again). In September, there aren't many festivities, and winter is almost _____ (over / ever).

In October, there's a very important religious _____ (festival / festivities) called Lord of the Miracles. It's _____ (bigger / biggest) in Lima. In November, it starts _____ (heating / hearing) up a little bit, and the rainy season _____ (somewhere / sometimes) starts in the mountains and in the _____ (juggle / jungle), too. In December, it's _____ (definition / definitely) the rainy season and children start _____ (locking / looking) forward to their _____ (some / summer) holiday.